Excerpt from "Twilight In The Forbidden City" by R.F. Johnston (Exhibit # 279).

On November 13th I returned to Shanghai and learned from provate belogram that the emperor had left Thoutsin for Mancharia.

The Chinese embayared to make out that the emperor had been kidnapped by the Japanese and carried off against his will. This statement was widely circulated among Europeans, many of whome believed it; but he was wholly untrue, The extraordinary statements recently published to the effect that the emporor and empress had telegraphed to Chiang Kai-shek at Nanking and to Chang Hsuch-liang at Peking "asserting their loyalty and asking for sanctuary" are equal false. So is the allogation that the emperor had "sworn a pact with his rife to commit suicide before he would consent to be king of Manchuria." I need hardly say that the last persons in the world to whom the emperor whould have appealed for sanctuary were Chiang Kaishok and Chang Hatich-liang; and that had be wished to escape from danger of being kidnapped and carried off to Manchuria, all he had to do was to walk on board a British steamer bound for Shanghai. His loyal and devoted servant Cheng Hsian-hsu was most emphatically not his jailor. He left Tieutsin and went to Manchuria of his own free will, and his faithful compainions were Cheng Hsiac-hsu (new his prime minister) and his son Cheng Cheui.
